The Daily Transcript

Nice weather

Our nice weather's going to continue, the weather service says, with highs Friday in the mid 70s. Lows Thursday night will be in the low 40s. No rain is forecast.

Vol. 111 - No. 96 Good afternoon! Today is Thursday, May 5, 1977 Golden, Colorado 15 cents

A lightning strike caused the third fire in four days in the Moss Rock area just off I-70 at the Chief Hosa exit, left. About 80 firemen from Lookout Mountain, Mt. Vernon, Evergreen and Idledale fire units battled the blaze from 2 p.m. until dark. It destroyed about five or six acres of Denver Mountain Park land. The Moss Rock area is not in a fire district, and residents don't have to pay for the fire service, a fact that irritates many of the firemen. Above, firemen carry water packs to fight the fire, which was on steep terrain. The fire was monitored overnight, and firemen were planning to return today to make sure it's out. 'Little progress' in Coors, union meeting today

Negotiators from the Adolph Coors Co. and the striking Brewery Workers Local 366 ended their second day of meetings with "very little progress and no major concessions" made, according to union spokesman Dick Hunter.

Company officials had no comment earlier this morning.

Hunter said the company is still proposing open shop, in which brewery workers wouldn't have to join the union, polygraph tests, "regressive seniority provisions, compulsory physical examinations at supervisors' whims and personal inspection by plant guards of employes or their personal property at the request of the employer."

The company also proposed that the losing party pay for the costs incurred in arbitration, which Hunter said "is another attempt to break the union financially."

The union has been on strike since April 5. Since then, the company claims 60 per cent of the strikers returned to work and the remainder of the strikers were replaced.

"The union believes the company will make every attempt to keep from reaching an agreement," Hunter said. "If Joe Coors is allowed to have his way, Coors will become the only non-union brewery in the country."

School subdivision bill dies

By MARILYN SALTZMAN
Transcript Staff Writer

A bill that would have permitted county commissioners to deny rezonings if public facilities or schools are unavailable is dead.

Rep. Dorothy Witherspoon, D-Lakewood, cosponsor of the bill, tried unsuccessfully Wednesday to "blast" the bill out of the House rules committee.

To get a bill out of committee and onto the House floor for debate without the committee's approval, two-thirds of the house must vote in favor. The vote was 36-22 in favor, but 44 votes were needed. Witherspoon said that all the Jeffco representatives except John McElderry voted for the "blast."

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Al Meiklejohn, R-Arvada, passed the Senate on a 34-0 vote. Meiklejohn said it was needed because "there has been a gap in the subdivision law."

In Jefferson County, there has been some controversy over whether the commissioners can deny rezonings on the basis of lack of schools. County Atty. Pat Mahan has said "no," Dist. Atty. Nolan Brown has said "yes."

Witherspoon said that she will continue to fight for this bill and try to get it on the governor's call so it can come before the legislature next year. She feels very strongly that the bill is needed and she has received lots of mail supporting it. She is concerned about the crowding of Jeffco schools due to the growth and "I'll continue to say it and hopefully on of these years a bill will get passed," she said.

"There was no sense in not letting the bill out of committee," she added. She accused Rep. Ken Kramer, R-El Paso, of keeping it in committee in response to requests from the lobbyist for the homebuilders and realtors associations. "It's a sad commentary that special interest groups can thwart the process," Witherspoon said.

The attempt by Witherspoon to "blast" the bill was the third unsuccessful attempt this week to get bills out of committee.

Rep. Tom Tancredo, R-Arvada, said earlier in the week that "I will vote for every one of the blasts. I'm opposed to the philosophy" of holding bills in committee.

He said blasts never work because the majority party seldom goes along with it. He said "it's one of the games played up here. They expect you to play ball." The implied threat is that if you don't play, "we'll zonk you," Tancredo said. But he will continue to stand up for his constituents rather than for the other representatives because "not one of them live in my district. I want to do the best for my people," he said.

Three Mines retirees to be honored

Three Colorado School of Mines faculty members will receive certificates of appreciation during CSM's 103rd commencement ceremonies Friday in the Green Center. All will retire this summer.

RALPH BOWERSOX

Bowersox, 65, is completing 13 years as a faculty member at CSM, and nine years as head of the physics department. Under his direction the research program has grown considerably and the physics curriculum has been restructured to give students more opportunities to pursue engineering employment.

He was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1933 where he also received a master of science in physics, 1934 and a Ph.D. in physics, 1938.

Bowersox joined the Toledo University faculty in 1938 as an assistant professor, then moved to Harvard University in 1942 and Michigan State University in 1945. He served at the Jet Propulsion Lab., Pasadena, Calif., as chief of the electronic instrumentation section from 1948 to 1959; was a consulting scientist for Lockheed Missile and Space Co., Palo Alto, Calif., 1959-1960, and served as physics research department manager of Martin-Marietta Co. in Denver from 1960-1964 before coming to Mines.

A native of Butte, Mont., Bowersox is a member of the American Association of University Physics Teachers, and the International Solar Energy Society. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi honor societies and a past member of Toastmasters International.

The author of more than 17 publications and papers and the inventor of a high-speed movie camera, Bowersox plans to continue research efforts in solar energy. He and his wife Helen, who live in Denver, will do extensive traveling.

CHARLES STARKS

Starks, 58, is completing 30 years on the faculty of the Colorado School of Mines. A native of Villa Grove, Ill., he was graduated from CSM in 1942 with a degree in metallurgical engineering and then served four years in the U.S. Army during World War II achieving the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. He returned for graduate studies to CSM following the war and received a master's degree in metallurgical engineering in 1947. He then joined the CSM faculty.

Starks has a rating of a corrosion specialist for the National Association of Corrosion Engineers; is a member of the American Society for Metals, and a Professional Engineer in Colorado. He is a member of the El Jebel Shrine, Denver, and will be a Worthy Patron of the Eastern Star.

Starks and his wife Georgie Bell plan to revisit all 50 states and are currently tracing the geneology of both their families. He plans to actively pursue photography and silversmithing. The Starks live in Golden.

VIRGINIA HEROLD

Mrs. Herold, who first joined the Mines library staff in 1940 and was appointed head librarian in 1956, has directed the development of the CSM library into one of the leading technical libraries in the mineral resources field.

A native of Ohio, Mrs. Herold was graduated from Rocky Ford High School, and Averett College, Danville, Va. She attended the University of Denver, graduating in 1937 with a B.A. in library science. She received the M.A. in 1952 from DU.

She was first employed by CSM as assistant librarian in April 1940. During World War II she was base librarian at the La Junta Army Air Force Base and was an Army librarian in France. After the war she returned to CSM and served as acting librarian until her appointment as head librarian in 1956.

Mrs. Herold is a member of a number of professional organizations including the Special Libraries Association; Bibliographical Center for Research, Rocky Mountain Region; American Society for Engineering Education, Engineering Libraries Division; Council of Librarians of Association of State Institutions of Higher Education in Colorado; member, Mountain Plains Library Association, and the Colorado Library Association.

She is also active in the Colorado State Historical Society, the Westerners, Audubon Society, National Federation of Wildlife, Defenders of Wildlife, Smithsonian Associate, American Museum of Natural History, Environmental Defense Fund and P.E.O.

The author of more than 10 publications, the Evergreen resident plans to enjoy keeping house; helping her husband, Paul, a metallurgist, in his laboratory work and doing some traveling.

'Dirty words' making rounds

By MARILYN SALTZMAN
Transcript Staff Writer

If you hadn't heard the latest in gutter language before this week, you've probably heard it now. A worksheet given to eighth grade students at Evergreen Junior High last week has made the rounds of both the Jefferson County community and the news media.

The worksheet became a last minute campaign issue, used by the Taxpayer Team, in the Jefferson County school board election. The worksheet, containing forty pornographic slang words to be matched with the correct word, first surfaced at a candidates meeting in Evergreen.

Frank Bales, campaign manager for the team, wrote, "This is an example of 1977 school board endorsed courses drawn up by the JCEA union. Your vote May 3 can change this now," on the bottom of the worksheet and distributed it at area churches on Sunday.

TOM MCDOWELL, R-1 finance director in charge of the election, said his office got a call from an upset parent on election day who said the worksheet was being distributed outside the polls in Evergreen and students were getting copies.

The controversial worksheet, (or quiz—it's been called both), originated in a family living course. Don Shaw, coordinator of the program, said it was not part of the curriculum and "the teacher made a mistake that few would make."

He said a student used a slang word and she wanted to teach them correct usage. The students gave her the list of slang words and she provided the correct ones.

Area Supt. Gene Crosby has met with the teacher and reprimanded her. "No one feels worse than she does," he said.

Shaw emphasized that the incident was "one isolated thing." "It's a shame that it had to happen and it's being misused," he said. Bales said, too, that he had not heard of a similar incident happening in any other school.

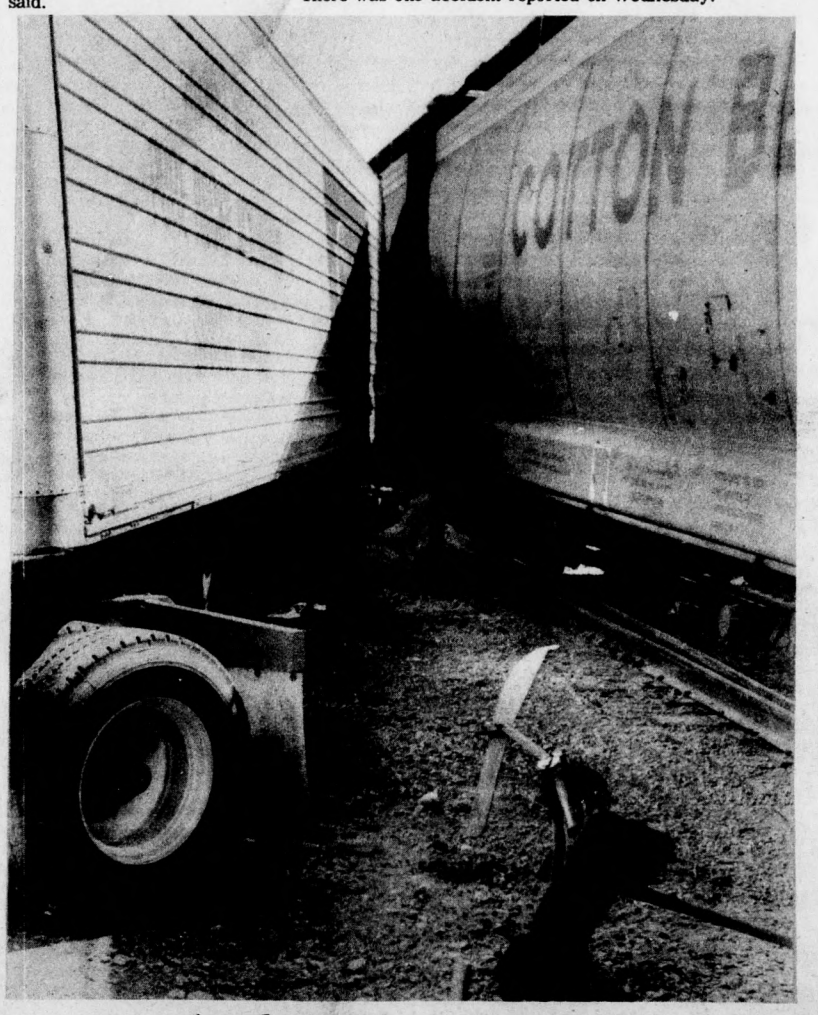
ART OHANIAN, who will assume the superintendency of R-1 schools in June, said, "To the best of my knowledge it was an isolated incident on the part of a teacher who used poor judgment." He said nothing in the curriculum indicates that any quiz like that should be included.

Ohanian said that all the family living teachers in the district will be informed of the situation and told to follow the curriculum carefully and use discretion. He said the program has been tightened up and he believes it is a good one.

Gene Layman, executive director of JCEA, reacting to the statement that the course was drawn up by JCEA, said, "Generally speaking most of the curriculum is drawn up by a joint committee with administrators, teachers and parents." The curriculum is screened by a citizen advisory council and approved finally by the board, he explained.

He said, "the misrepresentation does illustrate some of the tactics being used by the fundamental candidates."

Layman also pointed out that the district has a protest process and parts of the family living course have been challenged and modified as a result.



Another McIntyre accident

The late night campaigning, the arguments over the issues, the school board candidate profiles, the endorsements—all are over now. And we'd like to congratulate the winners Bill Ross, Luanne Hazelrigg and Lew Stieghorst.

It's also commendable that 15 people took the time and effort to run for the three vacant seats. Some were more qualified than others, naturally, but the interest in R-1 issues was good to see.

Even better was the fact that 22,866 people bothered to come out and vote. This is about double the number of people who voted two years ago—and it shows that when the issues and the candidates are clearly defined, people will turn out.

In the immediate area, turnout ranged from a high of 22 per cent at Golden High to a low of 5 per cent at St. Joseph's Parish Center. But the average was around 15 per cent, the same as the countywide average.

The work is just beginning for the three winners. We wish them all the best.

If you're calling Mom on Sunday...

Planning to give "Mom" a call on Mother's Day?

If you are, you won't be alone, says Tom Lindblom, area general manager for Mountain Bell. He says the company has already scheduled the extra people it will take to handle the expected 450,000 direct-dialed and operator-handled calls that will be placed in the Denver area on Sunday.

Mother's Day is second only to Christmas as the phone company's busiest day. "It's the location and length of calls that cause our Mother's Day jam," he said.

Mother's Day calls are usually placed between residential areas where the telephone network is engineered to handle the same number of calls that occur normally between business areas on a work day. And Mother's Day calls usually last longer than normal long distance calls, Lindblom explained.

HE HAS SEVERAL suggestions for avoiding the "jam" and getting the most out of a Mother's Day call.

—Timing will help. Calls should be placed between noon and 5 p.m. to avoid the busier times of the day. Calling peaks are also the highest on the hour and the half hour, so calls placed at other times will also go through faster. Avoid calling between 8 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. on Mother's Day since this period is the busiest call time for the network.

—Dial the call yourself. Dialing direct saves time and money because an operator's assistance isn't required. In most cases dialing direct is also the fastest way to complete a call.

—Planning helps. Callers are able to cover more subjects in less time by jotting down things they want to talk about. And those interesting little family news tidbits are less likely to be forgotten.

—Know the number. If Mom has a new number, if she isn't going to be near her home phone of if you just can't remember her number, it's best to get it from the long distance directory assistance operator the day before Mother's Day. And if Mom is overseas, it's especially important to have her number ahead of time.

—If you get a busy signal the first time, don't redial immediately. Hang up and wait a minimum of five minutes. Dialing immediately after getting a busy signal merely continues to tie up the lines and switching equipment, blocking your call and others from completing.

The finals trauma is finally over

Want to brush up on your Colorado School of Mines trivia? Try these questions.

—A mining company supplies petroleum products to an underground machine shop through a vertical pipe one inch in diameter and 800 feet long. Calculate the rate of delivery of Bunker fuel at 60 degrees F.

—A 100-ton ammonia refrigeration cycle operates with an evaporator temperature of 20 F and a condenser pressure of 180 lbf/in2. The efficiency of the compressor is 65 per cent. Determine the coefficient of performance, the compressor horsepower input and the ammonia flow rate, lbm-hr.

—Sketch the silica tetrahedral sheet, and the octahedral sheet that are constituents of all clay structures. Label the atoms of each, and list some common cation substitutions.

Now, I'm sure there are some Mines graduates out there who can rattle off the answers, but to most of us, these questions are just so much mumbo-jumbo. Here's the only hint I can give you—the first problem was on a fluid mechanics test, the second came from a thermodynamics class and the third is a geology question.

It's only after pondering questions like this that I can really appreciate what my husband is doing at the mineral engineering school up on the hill. I still don't understand much of it, but I can appreciate what 1,230 students went through this year.

Now, though, the school year is over—after these last excrutiating days of memorizing notes, working problems into the wee hours of the night, and, like my husband, having four finals within 24 hours.

Yes, I felt sorry for him—and I even doted on him. It wasn't always easy, though. A few weeks ago when he was studying for a test, I decided to fill out the Denver Post survey on whether married couples are happy they married who they did.

I couldn't answer the question, "What is the worst part of your marriage?" So I asked Don. He responded, not too patiently, "I'm sorry, I haven't thought about it today."

My response to the question? Homework.

With summer vacation here, we can get back to another, more relaxed routine. Go to a movie on a week night, no less. Go hiking on Saturdays instead of going to class at the experimental mine.

It sounds enticing.

Still stumped on those questions? Sorry, I'm not going to divulge them, even if I could. I've already got my degree.

Sex discrimination defense challenge

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Sex discrimination on the job is supposed to be against the letter and spirit of federal law. In fact, there is a government agency that handles a lot of sex discrimination cases in its enforcement of equal opportunity.

So why is the Justice Department helping a now-retired congressman defend himself in court against a charge of illegally preferring a man for a congressional staff job?

That's what Rep. Don Edwards, a liberal defender of civil liberties, wants to know.

The recent letter from this California Democrat to Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell poses the question in such a tone as to suggest the Justice Department should rethink its involvement.

The former congressman is Otto Passman of Louisiana. He fired Shirley Davis from his staff in 1974 and hired a man to do the work. Passman, to the delight of Davis' lawyer, even told her in writing that the job could be done better by a man.

Davis has won the first round, which was getting the courts to take her suit against a member of Congress, who usually is immune from the laws Congress expects other citizens to obey.

(Suggest to a congressman that the Freedom of Information Act, which Congress imposed on the executive branch, should apply as well to the legislative branch, and you'll see a reaction of shock and horror.)

Now Passman is fighting at the appellate level to get the case thrown out on the grounds that members of Congress do indeed enjoy immunity from prosecution for things said and done in the course of official business.

That may be stretching the original intent of the "speech and debate" clause in the Constitution, which sought to protect legislators from libel and slander suits as a result of things they might say in the heat of debate on the floors of their respective chambers.

But in modern times, the clause has been invoked to fend off angry citizens.

The late Sen. Joseph McCarthy hid behind this legal shield as he hurled labels such as "Communist" and "sympathizer" indiscriminately. And the late Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, one of the last of the truly high-living congressmen, got away with various transgressions thanks to the clause.

Back to Passman, Davis, Edwards and the Justice Department.

Passman asked the Justice Department to enter the case as a friend of the court (and as a friend of Passman) and explain to the judge how the speech and debate clause should protect him from aggrieved citizens like Davis.

Edwards, a high-ranking member of the House Judiciary Committee and not one to be trifled with, is demanding to know why the Justice Department has agreed to inject itself in this matter, and especially on the side of an employer accused of violating a law which the government would enforce against other citizens.

The Justice Department apparently has been convinced that the speech and debate clause needs defending, that it should not be nibbled away bit by bit. Exactly why it feels this is more important than Davis' grievance remains to be explained by the attorney general.

Women have just recently begun to crack the shell of immunity surrounding employment practices on Capitol Hill, where 15,000 persons work.

They have a long way to go to gain equal opportunities, even from legislators who favor equal opportunity laws for all other employers in the nation.

Edwards happens to support their efforts, and he also believes the Justice Department has no business in the case. Bell's reply should be interesting.

Today in history

Today is Thursday, May 5, the 125th day of 1977. There are 240 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1961, astronaut Alan Shepard was rocketed 115 miles into space from Cape Canaveral, becoming the first American in space.

On this date:

In 1570, Turkey declared war on Venice for refusing to surrender the island of Cyprus.

In 1821, Napoleon Bonaparte died in exile on the island of St. Helena.

In 1824, British troops occupied Rangoon, Burma.

In 1936, war ended in Ethiopia as the capital, Addis Ababa, fell to Italian troops.

In 1955, West Germany became a sovereign state as the terms of the Paris agreements of 1954 went into effect.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khruushchev angrily announced that an American spy plane had been shot down over Russia.

Ten years ago: The World Journal-Tribune ceased publication in New York, leaving Manhattan with three major daily newspapers.

Five years ago: An Italian jetliner crashed into a mountain near Palermo, Sicily, killing all 115 people aboard.

One year ago: Nationalists on the Mediterranean island of Corsica were demonstrating for independence from France.

Today's birthday: Food expert James Beard is 72 years old.

Thought for today: Anyone can sympathize with the suffering of a friend, but it requires a very fine nature to sumpathize with a friend's success. Oscar Wilde, Irish writer, 1854-1900.

League to fight increases

Rate increases being proposed by the Public Service Co. and by Mountain Bell are being protested by the Colorado Municipal League. The League announced its decision to seek intervention in the rate increase hearings on behalf of its approximately 225 member cities and towns and their citizens, including Golden.

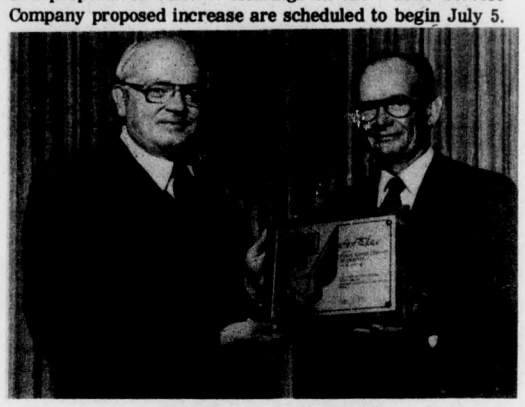
In both cases, the league will be particularly concerned with the authorized rate of return and the allowable operating costs for the utilities.

In addition to retaining special counsel, the league plans to hire expert witnesses to present the consumer point of view on the complex issues involved in utility rate cases.

The Public Service Co. is asking the PUC to authorize an increase in revenue of almost $55 million. This amounts to a 15.03 per cent increase in revenue from electricity, with the increase spread nonuniformly across the various rate classes. It amounts to a 9.36 per cent increase in revenue from gas, with the increase spread uniformly among all classes of service.

Mountain Bell is requesting the PUC to authorize an increase in revenue of more than $50 million. The proposal includes an average increase of 18 per cent for all grades of residential service and various increases for other categories of service.

The PUC has scheduled hearings to begin on the Mountain Bell proposal on June 6. Hearings on the Public Service Company proposed increase are scheduled to begin July 5.



Safety award

Public Service Co. of Colorado recently received the highest honor possible from the National Safety Council, a first place award for its safety record. In 1976, 22 employes were disabled by serious injuries. If the company had the national frequency rate of 13.3 accidents per million hours worked instead of 1.96, it was noted, 143 employes would have been disabled. Above, Richard F. Walker, left, president of PSCo, accepts the award from Robert Timothy, vice president of the National Safety Council.

60 attend Wirth seminar

Only a strong private sector can help the nation accomplish its twin goals: a healthy economy—with low unemployment and low inflation—and a balanced budget.

That was the message brought last week by Dr. Alice Revlin to the 60 participants in the 1977 Wirth Washington Seminar. Revlin is Congressional budget office director.

The seminar, co-sponsored by the Lakewood Chamber of Commerce, is in its third year. It is designed by Rep. Tim Wirth, D-Colo., to bridge the gap between Colorado and Washington, D.C.

Revlin noted the important role private enterprise must play, and she said the goals of low unemployment and low inflation often conflict with one another.

She said the government can strengthen the private sector with deregulation or tax stimuli for investments, but said such measures would have to take into account the repurcussions of such things as the increased costs of energy.

Arthur White, nationally known pollster, said many Americans are becoming more and more alienated from business and government. This could keep business from achieving the strength it needs to bring the country out of its economic doldrums, he said.

Wirth concluded by saying "we are all in this together. The issues we must deal with are so large, so complex, that our problems can be solved only by common understanding and unified action."

EVERYONE SAYS that the crab apple trees in front of Mitchell Elementary School were just beautiful again this year as they were last year. Sorry we missed that sight in Golden as it is one of the most magnificent at this time of year. However, we did get back from Europe in time to enjoy the lilacs. There are so many lilacs in bloom along East Street this year, huge bushes in many cases that create hedges. It takes a long time to grow a lilac hedge and have it bloom, so these old bushes are appreciated. We especially enjoy the very tall, stately lilacs in the Ed Jacobs yard which we see out our kitchen window.....

HERE'S A NEED you might help with. Stage Right of Golden High School, directed by Dave Farrar, needs several pieces of early 1900 furniture as props for a mellow-drayma to be presented May 25-29. The drama group needs a sofa, two settees, dining table and three chairs. If you have furniture of this period that you would be willing to loan, Director Farrar will be most grateful. He may be contacted by calling the school at 279-2523. The title of the mellow-drayma is "Little Nell, The Orphan Girl." We know the play will be enjoyable whether period furniture is obtained or not.....

MORE ABOUT the Centennial Singers Auction. It will be held outdoors as well as in the Golden High School cafeteria Saturday and Sunday, noon until 5 p.m. Larkins Auction Service and Will's Used Furniture are supplying the auctioneers for this fund-raising project. Food, including hamburgers and the like, will be served and the variety of articles to be auctioned off is endless. Centennial Singers will take donations for the auction. Contact them at the school, 279-2523.....

THE MADRIGALS of Golden High, another talented singing group, have two spring concerts scheduled that promise to be most interesting. They will sing at a special luncheon of the St. Anthony Hospital Auxiliary Tuesday, May 10. On May 11 the Madrigals will sing at St. Marks Lutheran Church Family Banquet at 7 p.m. Caroline Mallory, director, says the choristers have programmed "fun" things to do.....

BOY SCOUTS collected a little over seven tons of paper when the paper drive was held a couple weeks ago—this despite the fact that several paper drives were in progress the same weekend. This means that 14,000 plus pounds of waste paper will be put to good use and did not go to the dump. Watch for the date of the Scouts next paper drive.....

MRS. J. MANNING RHOADES, known to her many friends as Leila, is out of the hospital and recuperating at her home on South Golden Road. She underwent minor surgery and is doing well. Leila is more interested in the Senior Citizens Bowling team of which she is president. More and more Seniors are becoming interested in bowling, she says. This year the six teams play at the Golden Bowl every Tuesday afternoon from 2 until about 4 p.m. Eight teams have already signed up for next year. The teams will continue playing for two more weeks, then disband until the last of August when the bowlers will organize for next season. Play will begin the first part of September. Any Seniors—those 60 years of age and over—who are interested may call Mrs. Rhoades or the Golden Bowl for more information.....

New art show to open at Foothills

The works of Wyoming artists, stone sculpture and pottery will be featured at the new show opening Sunday, May 8 at the Foothills Art Center, 15th and Washington with a public reception from 2 to 4 p.m.

AN EXTENDED TRIP to Africa provided the background and research for the series of animal bronzes on display by Bunny Connell in the new show at Foothills Art Center.

Born in St. Louis, Mo., Connell moved at an early age to Big Horn, Wyo., where she grew up on a horse ranch. She is currently enjoying a multi-faceted career, as an artist, a wife and mother and a busy rancher.

Concentrating on the animal kingdom is a natural; she lives surrounded by horses, cattle, elk, deer, the family's "herd" of dogs and an occasional moose or bear.

Connell bronzes are in demand for collections and galleries around the country. Among the animals included in the 15-piece collection at Foothills, are lions, elephants, cheetah, impala, hoppos, giant kudu, giraffes, zebras and the gerenuk.

A POTPOURRI OF paintings and drawings by Mary Burgess will be among the new exhibits opening at the center. Pastels, watercolors, oils and ink are some of the media used to express the artist's reaction to her world.

A native of Michigan, Mary spent her childhood years in the Philippines where her father was a professor and, later, vice-governor general. She returned to Michigan for a university degree in history and then spent several years in the American Red Cross during World War II. Then Wyoming became her permanent home.

The Burgess family resides on a cattle ranch northeast of Sheridan. Mary started to paint in 1960 and, through the activities of the Wyoming Artists' Association and the Sheridan Artists' Guild, she has become a leading participant in the art-life of that area.

She has won awards and ribbons at the Wind River National Exhibit and her paints have been selected for the Congressional Shows.

SCULPTOR, CHRIS HAWORTH, expresses man's feelings, thoughts and aspirations in his free-form sculptures. Marble, alabaster, onyx, serpentine and limestone are included in his exhibit at Foothills.

Haworth is a career sculptor, having apprenticed with Leon Saulter of California. He has exhibited his works at the Gilpin County Arts Gallery, the Brass Cheque, the Boulder Arts Association, Jewish Community Show and the Central City Gallery.

Interest in the arts was part of his family life, especially acting, directing and playwriting. His grandfather worked in Hollywood for three decades creating film sets. Haworth is presently involved with the restoration and maintenance of historic properties. He is a member of the Central City Opera House Association and director on the Board of Trustees, Gilpin County Arts Association.

Farmers' Almanac

By Mike Connors

DRIFTING AWAY for a week of fun and hard work, 110 Wheat Ridge students will run the Green River for the eighth straight year. The students will raft through Dinosaur National Monument on the Green River May 17-22 and 25-30 and the Green River in Desolation Canyon in Utah on July 12-17 and 17-22.

The trips began in 1970 when Glenn Snyder, biology teacher, arranged for biology students to take river trips with the Outward Bound program through Dinosaur National Monument. In 1972 the students raised money to purchase five rafts and paddles, life jackets, sleeping bags, cooking utensils and other necessary gear. No funds are given to the program by Jeffco Schools.

BY OWNING THEIR equipment and having trained faculty run the trips, the students save 75 per cent of the cost of a commercial trip. The cost this year is $80 for the May trip and $85 for the July trip. This includes transportation by school bus, meals, rafting equipment and use of equipment like sleeping bags and ponchos.

"The students work on my trips," contends Snyder. "They paddle the boars, cook their own meals and do just about everything—this makes them more involved in the trips and the trips are more exciting. On a commercial trip they wouldn't do anything but ride."

SNYDER SAYS that "The trips are the most meaningful thing I've ever done. I have a love for rivers; I hope to communicate this to students. I feel bad every time someone builds a dam."

The river trips are a cooperative effort of the faculty and students at WR. More than one-fourth of the faculty has been down the river on student or faculty trips. Melvin Patee and Terry McClelland, both shop teachers, have built equipment for the trips and Harry Rust, Chris Bolton, John Alden and others are trained guides on the river.

Last year Donosaur National Monument notified Wheat Ridge and Golden and the two other schools that they are canceling all educational trips. If the schools wish to go down the river, they can go a commercial trip since the government is not cutting back on the commercial trips. Rep. Tim Wirth, D-Colo. has introduced a resolution to allow education groups to continue using Donosaur and other parks and monuments. The resolution has been held up in Congress. Until it is passed, the future of the river raft trips is in danger.

CSM plans 103rd commencement

Various mineral engineering degrees will be presented to more than 154 graduating seniors when the Colorado School of Mines hosts its 103rd commencement ceremonies Friday, May 6, at 9 a.m. in Bunker Auditorium in the Green Center, 16th and Cheyenne Streets.

While the demand for college graduates appears to be decreasing, the need for mineral engineers is increasing rapidly. The CSM seniors graduating had more than 260 reported offers for employment and those who accepted employment will start at an average salary of $1,400 per month.

"Colorado at the Crossroads" will be the title of the commencement address to be delivered by Colorado Gov. Richard D. Lamm, who will receive an honorary doctor of engineering degree.

Following the formal commencement address, the Faculty Women's Club will host a reception for the 1977 graduates and their families in Friedhoff Hall of the Green Center.

Jan Miller to receive van Diest Gold Medal

Dr. Jan D. Miller will be honored for his contributions to mineral engineering education when he receives the Edmond C. van Diest Gold Medal at the 103rd CSM commenment tomorrow.

The van Diest Gold Medal was established by Dr. Edmond C. van Diest in 1950 for recognition of outstanding acheivement by a Colorado School of Mines alumnus in the fifth to fifteenth year after graduation. Miller is the eleventh recipient of the medal.

Miller was graduated with honors from Pennsylvania State University in 1964 and received from CSM the master of science in metallurgical engineering in 1966 and a Ph. D. in 1969.

Since joining the University of Utah, Department of Metallurgical Engineering of the College of Mines, Miller has been involved in curriculum reorganization and the introduction of new course work. He has administered sponsored research grants of nearly $1 million; given 27 technical presentations at professional society meetings; is the author or co-author of 22 technical publications; participated in the Department of the Interior's Mineral Policy Forum in 1973 and the Workshop on Resaarch Needs in Extractive Metallurgy of the National Science Foundation in 1974.

A hydrometallurgy specialist, Miller has done research on hot water extraction of the bitumen in Utah's tar sands, considered a significant contribution to meeting the nation's energy needs.

Throwing error

Golden beats WR

Golden High pitcher Rod Baker had a bad start in his game with Wheat Ridge Wednesday. The first batter faced in the contest lined the ball over the left field fence to give the Farmers a 1-0 lead.

The Demons got some key hits in the late innings of the game and won in the bottom of the seventh, 8-7.

Baker gave up two more runs in the second and third frames before his club exploded for six runs in the fourth inning to give Golden a 6-5 lead.

The junior hurler for Golden filled the bases in the top of the seventh and the Farmers used a pinch hit single to force two runs home, and put Wheat Ridge into a 7-6 advantage.

Stuart Cobb singled to start the final inning for Golden and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt. Golden tied the game as Charlie Gains doubled up the alley, moving Cobb across the plate.

Gains later scored the winning run on a single.

The win is the second in a row for the Demons and their fourth in the conference action.

Baker posted his first win of the season in the game while Wayne Brown has the other conference three wins.

In other league action, Arvada had to come from behind in its game with Pomona to win 3-2. The Panthers scored two runs in the third inning to take a 2-1 lead in the contest, but Arvada battled back with one in the top of the seventh to tie and won with one in the eighth.

Lakewood used three home runs, including a grand slam, to beat Evergreen, 11-8 while Green Mountain downed Columbine 5-3.

Two clubfests were also recorded in the league as Jefferson nailed Arvada West, 16-13, and Bear Creek won 15-14 over Alameda.

The Saints of Jefferson came up with 15 runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to rip the Wildcats. The Bears also came from behind with six runs in the bottom of the seventh inning for their victory.

Lakers advance

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar connected for 36 points and grabbed 26 rebounds to lead the L.A. Lakers to a 97-84 victory over Golden State.

The win gave the Lakers a 4-3 edge in the best of seven game series and the team will advance to the semifinals, facing the Portland Trailblazers.

Ricky Barry and company took a 29-18 first quarter lead but the Lakers came back and held a narrow 48-46 lead at the half.

L.A. controlled the second half of the game and the Warriors last saw the light near the end of the third quarter when they pulled ahead by two. After that point, it was all L.A. to the final shot, 97-84.

Rick Barry did not have an impress night from the floor and hit only 15 points. Jamaal Wilkes was the high scorer for the Warriors with 24 marks.

The Lakers, with the home court advantage, will play Portland on Friday night. In the other semifinal game, Philadelphia battles Houston.

Portland received some bad news Wednesday when Dr. Robert Cook, the team doctor, announced guard Dave Twardzik would not be able to play in the opening game with L.A. The physician did note there was still an outside chance of him playing but it looked dim.

The Portland guard sprained his ankle in the fifth game of the series with Denver.

Pete Shmock is model

U.S. Olympic athletes neglected

By JACK MURPHY
Copley News Service

The authors of the recently published report of the President's Commission on Olympic Sports might well have chosen Pete Shmock as a model of the American world class athlete who is a victim of benign neglect.

Shmock is a shot thrower of such skill that he represented the United States in the Montreal Olympics last summer. Nice. That enabled him to achieve the first of his goals. The next goal is a medal in the Moscow Olympics of 1980.

But how does an athlete devote time and energy for 3.5 years to the training required of an Olympic athlete and provide food and shelter for wife and self?

Pete's problem is basic: "I don't even know if I'll be able to pay this month's rent. I need some kind of a job."

His struggle merits attention partly because he is fairly typical of the American athlete who is crippled by a system which provides one year of feast and three years of famine. The only good years are the Olympic years.

"They help you the year the Olympics come around," says Shmock, "the other three years, forget it. We need help now. About once a week I go through the trauma of asking myself if I should quit."

But he persists because competition fulfills a basic need. "Throwing the shot is one thing I do well, I'd like to keep on doing it. I want to win a medal in Moscow and that will be the end, that will wind up 15 years of throwing."

Shmock is a pleasant young man of 26 years who got his bachelor's degree (social sciences) at the University of Oregon. Last August he married Patrice Donnelly, a hurdler of excellent reputation, after both had competed in the Montreal Games.

Their romance was an event of the U.S. Olympic Trials in Eugene, Ore., where Pete qualified for the team on the first day and Patrice on the last. The two are equal in their ambition to compete in the Moscow Olympics.

Pete reasons that he can't ask Patrice to support him until 1980 because traditionally the man is the provider and their aspirations are of equal importance. Thus, his mounting sense of frustration.

He regards the report of the President's Commission as an abstract document of little meaning to the impoverished athlete.

"I guess the report is good in that they're talking about us," he says, "but it seems there's always talk and nothing behind it. The U.S. Olympic Committee collects huge sums of money but we never see it.

"I'm talking about needing help right now; never mind two years from now. My suggestion is that if people want to support the Olympics they should write a check to an athlete in their local area instead of contributing to the Olympic Committee. That way the money would have immediate and direct benefit."

The President's Commission finds that "American performances in international sport are deteriorating" and Shmock knows why. The noncollege athlete is burdened by poor coaching, inadequate facilities, and financial insecurity.

Shmock, for example, has two prime needs: a job and an understanding employer. He wants a boss who will allow him freedom for three hours of hard training each afternoon when the light is good for throwing a 16-pound ball. The rest of his conditioning, mainly lifting weights, can be accomplished each evening.

If potential Olympic medalists are important to U.S. prestige, as the President's Commission argues, then such as Pete Shmock are worthy of care. In lieu of assistance from the Olympic movement, he needs a job that will leave him strength to train.

Franco wins

Franco Harris, the hard-running fullback of the Pittsburgh Steelers, moves with the same determination and dedication off the field as he does on.

Harris, who was the MVP of Super Bowl IX in 1975, works hard in the Pittsburgh area on behalf of charitable and civic organizations. He has been tireless on behalf of the National Association for Retarded Children, the Pittsburgh School for the Blind, the Childrens Hospital, and the YMCA.

All this, plus his great ball-carrying ability, won Harris a singular honor in 1976. He was named the Dodge-NFL Man of the Year, which got him a new car, a trophy, and a $10,000 scholarship fund in the Pittsburgh area in his name.

Golden girls set new records in league

The Jefferson County girls league relays were held Tuesday and Wednesday. The field events took place on the first day with the track races on the second.

The Golden High team was one point out of first place with 41 points following completion of the field events while Alameda and Lakewood were tied for first with 42.

In the second half of the relays, Golden did not place in any of the races.

After the meet was finished, Golden was in fifth place with its 41 points. Arvada West scored heavily in the track events and won the meet with 69 marks followed by Wheat Ridge, 63; Lakewood, 58; and Alameda, 50.

The other finishers were Green Mountain, 29; Evergreen, 27; Arvada, 26; Bear Creek, 16; Columbine, 16; Pomona, 7; and Jefferson, 1.

The Demons broke two meet records in the field events. Deb Durbin, Julie Korthius and Jenny Scott combined their best throws in the shot put for 102-feet-8¾. The team broke the old record of 101-6.

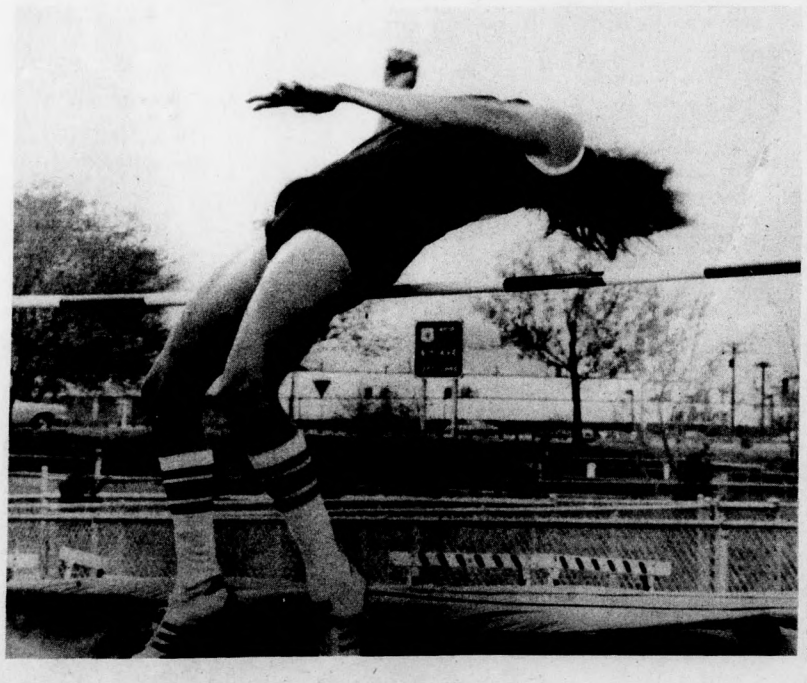
Durbin, Korthius, and Martha Hutchinson also broke the discus record at 315-4. The former best was 295-5.

Golden placed second in the softball throw with 446-6. Hurling for the Demons was Korthius, Hutchinson, and Laurie Welch. Lakewood won the event with a team total of 448-1.

The team of Durbin, Welch, and Hutchinson posted a third in the standing long jump four inches off the winning Lakewood squad total. The Demons leaped 22-4.

Alameda won the running long jump at 48-9½ while Golden came in third at 48-2½. Durbin, Welch and Cathy Nelson competed for the Demons.

Golden also placed in the high jump with Bonnie Korthius, Scott, and Welch representing Golden. The team finished sixth at 14-2. Lakewood won the event at 15-2.



Close

Jenny Scott almost cleared the bar with this high jump, but hit it with her feet. It was her third miss at the height and eliminated her from further competition.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)
Stellar influences somewhat restrictive. Shun contentious matters, unscrupulous persons, risky and untried ventures.

Your creative ideas may need some revision before they can be carried out, so be sure to study all angles of feasibility before presenting them to superiors.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)
An accumulation of "small" tasks, untended, could present a mountain of problems if you're not careful.

RALSTON SCHOOL NOTES. Speaker for the last PTO-sponsored meeting of the year will be Dr. Joel Macht, author of "Teaching Our Children," who will suggest methods by which parents may teach their children desired behavior. There will be a fee of $1 for each adult attending. A nursery will be provided for pre-school children and a Walt Disney movie for older children attending with their parents.

Field Day is scheduled for May 20. Some of the alums enjoy watching the 6th grade-parent-teacher softball game which follows field day, so mark your calendars.

OPEN SPACE is building a horse and hiking trail starting from the Lookout Mountain Road across from Colorow Road and ending behind Heritage Square. One of the workmen putting the finishing touches to the barbless wire fence said the trail will be finished this summer by the Open Space youth workers.

GOLD CITY TRANSMITTER is Lookout Mountain's newest night club, catering to country music buffs. Oldtimers on the Mountain know this building has had a succession of owners with businesses ranging from gift shop to restaurants, and the new owners, Ed Fisher and Jim Pilcher have made changes and plan more. They have spent seven months remodeling and genial manager-day bartender-night doorman Paul Kurvink gave us a tour of the results last week.

Open daily except Monday from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m., the Transmitter has an enlarged dance floor; tables to accomodate 135, made by Fisher himself; a cozy room suitable for tete-a-tete and soon to be furnished with pillow furniture; and an even cozier "crow's nest," accessible by a tiny flight of stairs. Outside, a small tree shaded, stone walled garden will become an old world beer garden with the addition of umbrella tables and a barbecue pit this summer.

Entertainment by well-known country music groups, like Chuch Price this week, and road bands passing through, is featured Wednesday through Saturday evenings, and Sundays 2 to 8 p.m. No lunches are served yet, but they do have a steak dinner on week-ends. The Transmitter will also consider making accommodations for private parties for those with small houses and large guest lists.

JEFFCO LWV-Mountain Parks Unit. The May 10 meeting at Gudi Gaskill's will be concerned with financing of state services.

TENNIS. Juniors' coke party will be Saturday, 10-11:30 a.m. at Mt. Vernon Country Club. Pro Tom Knight will be there to meet everyone and tell what activities he is planning for the season. It will be a good opportunity for all juniors to meet the others who will be on the courts this summer. Arrangements for the party have been made by Sally Hopper.

ROCKLAND SUNDAY SCHOOL teachers were delighted by the turnout of a large group of parents and children last Saturday who all eagerly pitched in and, in 2½ hours time accomplished a great deal of cleaning and painting. Thanks also go to Esther Hicks, Board of Education chairman, for coordinating the tasks, and to Beth Miller who produced a delicious pancake breakfast for all the hungry workers.

REMEMBER to look for the Religion column on this page today for other Rockland Church news.

MOUNTAIN residents who are tiring of the city traffic hassle on their daily trips to downtown offices might do well to get Tom Anthony's tour of his latest enterprise, the Buffalo Building at Lookout Mountain Road and Old 40. Tom, a Paradise Hills resident, has moved by degrees from city pressures and is presently preparing a garden level suite for his offices. His office neighbor is Jim Clabaugh, a Mt. Vernon resident whose construction company remodeled and rebuilt the former House of Carvings Museum to become the attractive office building.

The ground floor was occupied by the Loefs' (Panorama residents) Needle in the Haystack when Evergreen Realtor Don Stanbro decided to establish another real estate office in the north suite. Incidentally, Stanbro has copies of the Mountain map LWV put out showing how to get there from here, from Soda Creek to Panorama, with all streets named.

These relaxed and satisfied business persons would welcome some new neighbors. Tom Anthony has three office spaces left.

WATER SAVERS will be encouraged to know their efforts have produced results. The first quarter's report has been made showing that the top reservoir serving Lookout Mountain water users is now full and Ab Wale expects the other two Beaver Brook reservoirs to reach their capacity this weekend. Although recent precipitation has been a contributory factor it is obvious from the $10,000 decrease in revenue that there has been a definite decrease in first quarter usage, both in the Mountain community and the City of Golden. Golden City Manager Chuck Goudge is pleased by the voluntary response to conservation both in the city and on the Mountain. If we can maintain our consciousness about the potential problem, there may be no necessity for imposed restrictions on water usage during this summer.
